

What They're Saying About Votes in Congress

"As more and more newspapers and newspaper companies shutter D.C. bureaus, this service will become increasingly important --particularly to smaller newspapers that want to keep their readers informed of their congressional delegations."

--Todd Foster, Editor, Bristol, Va.-Tenn., Herald-Courier

"Your service is accurate and reliable and runs like clockwork. Especially appreciated (is) the clarifying language that is always included when a `yes' vote is really negative on a piece of legislation and a `no' vote really positive. And your staff is always responsive to inquiries.

"You provide a great service vital to democracy."

--Chris Powell, Managing Editor, Journal Inquirer, Manchester, Conn.

"We find the congressional voting reports valuable information for our readers. Even in these difficult days of cutting back, we will continue with your service."

--Susan Spring, Director of Newsroom Operations, The News & Observer, Raleigh

"We make a serious commitment to covering the work of Wisconsin's congressional delegation with a two-member D.C. bureau, and the weekly vote chart is a tremendous (and cost-effective) supplement to their work."

--Carl Schwartz, National Editor, Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

"The succinctly presented information gives a fantastic snapshot of what our lawmakers are doing in D.C., and often provides a source for more in-depth local reporting based on issues dividing our legislators. I highly recommend this addition for any newspaper looking to localize the federal pipeline."

--Michael Gibbons, Managing Editor, Aiken, S.C., Standard

"The weekly roll call report is a service our readers have come to rely on and an excellent way to keep them informed about issues that Congress votes on week after week."

--Ken Walston, Deputy News Editor, Albuquerque Journal

"I first used this service at another newspaper, in the days of snail mail, and it was very popular then. I was glad to be able to bring the service onboard at our daily...The Roll Call is a valuable tool for our readers as they traipse through the muddy waters of political speak and into the clear waters of weekly roll call tallies that remove the spin and provide true accountability."

--Richard S. Whiting, Executive News Editor, The Index-Journal, Greenwood, S.C.

"This is great information, and we're glad to bring it to you."

--Bob Heisse, Executive Editor, Centre Daily Times, State College, Pa.

"We've heard very positive feedback from readers....I wish there was a similar service for our state legislature."

--Fitz McAden, Executive Editor, The Island Packet, Hilton Head, S.C.
